Printed service sheets and material displayed via data projectors are provided by schools to enable pupils and students to actively participate in liturgies. In many instances this is cheaper and more practical than using hymn books. There is a variety of practice in schools about producing service sheets for Mass, assemblies and other liturgies. This document aims to draw together best practice and to offer additional guidance on copyright law.

As well as a celebration of the Catholic Life of the school, liturgies are also educational. The Mass has distinct sections.

1. THE INTRODUCTORY RITES

The greeting, Penitential Act and Opening Prayer (also referred to as the Collect) that form the beginning of the Mass.

3. LITURGY OF THE EUCHARIST and the COMMUNION RITE

The focus is on the altar, where the priest says the Eucharistic Prayer. During the distribution of communion everyone is welcome to go forward to the priest or ministers. Catholics receive the communion. Those who are not Catholic, or for some other reason not receiving communion, are invited to receive a blessing.

2. LITURGY OF THE WORD

The focus is on the Ambo<sup>1</sup>, where the readings from the bible are proclaimed. Usually there would be two readings, usually one from the Old Testament and a Gospel, plus a Psalm. The most important reading is the Gospel. The community stands to hear the words of Christ, read by the priest/deacon. It is not usually appropriate to include the text of the readings in service sheets. The congregation should be listening to the Word being proclaimed.

4. THE CONCLUDING RITES

The Mass ends with the final prayers, blessing and dismissal. When producing a service sheet for Mass it is helpful to use headings to emphasise the structure of Mass. In addition, good practice is to follow a consistent presentation style that makes it clear when the congregation are to join in. One effective way is for the words that are to be spoken or sung by All to be in bold, by the priest/leader in 'ordinary' type and any instructions in italic. A sample extract is offered on page 2.

Using Copyright Material

It is important to be clear about the use of copyrighted material. Copying the music and the words of hymns without permission is against the law. Anytime the words or music are put into a service sheet or projected onto a wall/screen it is subject to copyright law. This includes photocopying pages from a hymn book because the publishers have copyright on the typography of the publication itself. Using printed hymnbooks is straight forward because the publishers have arranged all the copyright permissions and fees.

It is costly to purchase hymn books for school use and time consuming to secure individual copyright permission every time the words are produced on a service sheet or for a projector. The solution is to have a copyright license. The main providers of copyright licenses for liturgical material are:

- Calamus – This is administered by Decani Music (the company that publishes the 'Laudate' hymn book).
- CCLI (Christian Copyright Licensing International)

Calamus:
www.decanimusic.music.co.uk
Telephone: 01842 819830

For Catholic schools and colleges, it is really important to buy a Calamus license. The vast majority of composers whose hymns and songs are used by Catholic schools, colleges and parishes are in the Calamus scheme. For example, all the Taizé songs, the hymn books Laudate, Celebration Hymnal, Liturgical Hymns Old & New, most of the settings for Mass parts are covered by the Calamus license.

The annual fee is dependent on the size of the school, from £42 to £144. For those schools linked to a parish which has its own license it is possible to reduce those fees slightly by 'extending' the parish license. Calamus also have a 'Taizé only' option and a set of 'one-off' copyright permissions at £5 per hymn.

When copying music, the Calamus license includes permission for reproduction of the 'melody' line only. The only exception is that the Taizé material allows reproduction of the 'four-part harmony'.

In case you are not already aware, since April 2015 the CCLI has been included in the general copyright licenses paid for by the DfE for all state funded schools in England. (Other licenses in the DfE scheme include Performing Rights Society, Motion Picture Licensing Company and Educational Recording Agency).

In respect of liturgical material, the CCLI license provides copyright permission for a wide range of liturgical music. Their website is easy to use. To access and print your license you simply type in the school's URL.

The website also has guidance on what material is covered and what is not covered. There is an on-line reporting system. (See comments on page 6 about the importance of reporting) There are two types of license provided:

Collective Worship Copyright License (CWCL) – which covers typing, printing or hand-writing words of hymns.

Collective Worship Music Reproduction License (CWMRL) – which covers copying words and music directly from published hymnbooks/liturgical music books, and storing/sharing digital copies.

Independent schools are not covered by the DfE scheme and would need to purchase two separate licenses directly from CCLI:

NB - The CCLI license does not cover all liturgical music!

Many of the hymns and songs used by the Catholic community are not included.

REPORTING

For both CCLI and Calamus it is a requirement to provide regular accurate reporting of hymns that have been used on service sheets or displayed via projectors. Every school and college need to have a nominated person to administer the reporting of material printed or copied for us at liturgies and assemblies. This is vital to ensure that composers and song writers are paid for their work! This is a matter of justice and a way of ensuring that there continues to be people producing new materials for us all. CCLI have an on-line reporting system. Calamus has a quarterly reporting sheet.

OTHERS

There remain some composers/writers whose work is not covered by either license. In such cases individual copyright permission would be needed from the publisher. Both CCLI and Calamus have detailed lists of who are included in their licenses and are happy to offer advice and guidance.

THE CORRECT METHOD FOR INSERTING THE COPYRIGHT DETAILS

CCLI have a preferred method for presentation of material covered by their license. Under the words of each song the details of author, © year, owner, and license number should be displayed.

Calamus offers two methods for presentation of material covered by their license.

1. For one song or hymn on a sheet or displayed via projector, all the appropriate details should be underneath that song or hymn.

e.g.
A.N.Other, © 2014 Lovely Music, Calamus license No. 654321

2. For service sheets with several songs or hymns then the specific authorship is to be acknowledged underneath each individual song ....

e.g.
A.N.Other, © 2014 Lovely Music
 ... and the license details at the end of the service sheet:
e.g.
Words & Music of songs/hymns reproduced with permission under Calamus license No. 654321

When reproducing any text from the Mass the separate ICEL copyright line should be underneath the Calamus one:

e.g.
Excerpts from the English translation of the Roman Missal
© 2010 ICEL. All rights reserved.

THE WORDS OF THE MASS

By the way the text of the Mass is itself subject to copyright law. The good news is that the copyright holder only charges when the text is put into publications that are for sale. However, they do want the copyright suitably acknowledged. So, whenever the text of the Mass is included in service sheets or displayed on screens via projectors, the following tag line should be included:

Excerpts from the English translation of the Roman Missal© ICEL. All rights reserved
